PERSONAL AND SOCIETY.

The choice for wedding days is about equally divided between June and October. This year October has had the lead, and the 'past week has been the special preference of numerous couples. Among the most notable were those of Mr. James W. Lilly and Miss Blanche May Dollens, which occurred Tuesday evening at the residence of the bride's parents on North Pennsylvania street. Rev. M. L. Haines, of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated. The same evening Mr. George E. Field, manager of the Remington typewriter, was married to Miss Ella Webb at the home of Mr. Charles Robinson in Woodruff Place. Wednesday afternoon Miss Nellie Torrence became the wife of Mr. Thomas R. Thornburg, the North-end druggist, at the family resi-No. 407 North East street. Rev. J. Albert Rondthaler performed ceremony. Wednesday evening Miss Jennie Vance was united in marriage to Mr. D. E. Lines, a carriage manufacturer of Chicago, and left the same evening for their home in that city. Rev. E. P. Whallon, of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, officiated. The largest wedding of the week was that of Miss Katharine Cooper and Mr. George Chandler, at the former's home on College avenue. Rev. J. H. Ford, of Central-avenue Church, pronounced the service. There were a large number of guests from out of town. Indianapolis people were also interested in the marriage of Capt. James B. Curtis to Miss Junette Cutler, of New Jersey. During the past year a large number of young ladies have been married and gone away to live, but this fall most of them have married gentlemen here and remained among their old friends, and a number of the young men have brought their brides here. So this city is richer, and will be. Captain Curtis will be home soon. Mr. Louis Deschler goes to Burlington tonight for his bride, Miss Carrie Copeland. Mr. George VanVorhis will go to New York for Miss Lynch. Mr. James Morris, in Terre Haute, on Tuesday, will be married to Miss Staht, and if report is true at all, these are not the only young men who will go away for wives this fall. Miss Jennie Vance was united in

One of the entertainments that will bring one's intellectual faculties into play, more than cards, progressive angling and kindred amusements, is "anagrams," or "progressive anagrams." The arrangements are about the same as for progressive euchre. Several tables-seats for four at each-for each there are cards prepared, having at the top some word. One with a variety of letters is best. As, for instance, at a recent party of this kind, the word was "anthropometrical." With each card there should be a pencil. Partners may be chosen and tables in any way the host or hostess may desire. At a given signal all commence to write the words beginning with the first letter of the word at the head of the card, and using only the letters in the word, and no letter can be duplicated or doubled unless it appears twice or three times in the word. At the end of four minutes the signal is given and the partners compare cards. All words alike count one, and all that one has and the other has not, count five each. The results are added and the partners having the most go to the next table, at the tap of the bell, two minutes later. The winning partners keep scorecards, as in euchre, with the results marked. At the next table partners are changed, and the second-letter of the word is taken in the same way. Should a letter that has already been used occur a second time, it should be skipped and the next taken. The game may be stopped at any time. All the results added, of course, makes the total, and the ones having the greatest number are awarded with a prize, for no party is complete without a reward of merit. It might be well to add that those partners having the least must keep their records also, as they might be the winners of the next letter. There are not a few who have a penchant for making anagrams, and these will naturally be the winners, even if there should be more "brainy" ones in the company.

Miss Suemma Vaien celebrated her sixth

Miss Suemma Vajen celebrated her sixth birthday anniversary yesterday by giving a party to about thirty of her little friends. It was a vision of beautiful children when they were all assembled, and in their plays and marches, and when engaged in blowing soap-bubbles, they enjoyed every moment of the time. In the dining-room were small chairs, and here they gathered about a table, bearing lovely flowers, and in the center was the birth-day cake, with six colored candles. The favors were little pails of candies. The young hostess received a great variety of presents from her friends. Among the children present were: Landis, John and Virginia Shaw, Robert and Richard Griffith, Hugh and Bessie Defrees, Dillon Hacker, Ida Fahnley, Garvin Brown, Russell and Will Sullivan, John and Edith Wood, Celine Henry, Mabel Rose, Isabel Gates, Marion Miller, Ruth and Jean Morrison, Gertrude Henson, Ferdinand and Charles Mayer, and Eddie Gross.

A DREAM IN FURS

I thought we stood in a wintry wood On a cold and moonless night,

And all around on the trees and ground Gleamed eyes so shining bright;

To a motley throng they did belong Of animals great and small;

The Seal was there, Otter, Beaver and Bear. The Marten, Lynx, Sable and all. The Silver Fox stood on a log of wood

While the monkey thus harangued aloud: "My friends, I see, by your letters to me,

You desire to join the crowd. After thinking it o'er, I see BAMBERGER'S Store
